

If there's a place where you get to know everybody — from growers to processors to manufacturers — it's in a compliance lab. Five years is a long time in the hemp and cannabis space. I have established great relationships with people in every aspect the business.

Helping entrepreneurs partner with suppliers who are a perfect fit for their companies' culture and their products is one of the most rewarding parts of my consulting work. Making connections is essential to success in any business. The right combination is hard to find and hard to beat! You want to be unbeatable, right?
